Greetings from the president

The American Boccaccio Association is happy to announce its alliance with Heliotropia, the online Boccaccio journal established by Prof. Michael Papio. In an effort to modernize our operations, we will be posting our bibliography and news on web-pages linked to this site. However, because we do not want to lose any of you who prefer to receive your information on paper, we will continue to send out a paper newsletter to those who request it. As usual, we will be holding both a Boccaccio session and a Lectura Boccacci at the MLA (see details below).

I recently launched into a project of my own regarding plays based on the Griselda story. Thinking there would be a handful of such plays, I was astonished to find more than thirty, stretching from the fifteenth century into the twentieth – another reminder of how richly Boccaccio, in addition to his own prolific literary production, has continued to inspire other writers. Of course, all of us who write about Boccaccio can add ourselves to the list of evidence of his ongoing powers of inspiration.

In the attempt to reach all of our members via e-mail we have produced our own list but we would like to urge you to send us any further updates to be added to our directory. This will allow us to help American Boccaccio scholars contact each other, and to keep us posted on your Boccaccio-related activities. With best wishes for the remainder of the academic year,

Janet Smarr, ABA President

CALL FOR PAPERS

Any abstract related to Giovanni Boccaccio’s life, works, fortuna, and comparative study is welcome.

Please send proposals to Janet Smarr (email). Deadline for submission: March 20, 2006.

Howard R. Marraro Prize Awarded to Marilyn Migiel

The prestigious Howard R. Marraro Prize was presented this past fall to Marilyn Migiel, of Cornell University, for her book A Rhetoric of the Decameron, published by the University of Toronto Press. A detailed description of this honor was provided in the MLA's press release.

Lectura Boccacci Project

Michael Sherberg, the editor of the Day IV volume, is soon to publish a list of contributors, and invites any of you interested in contributing to contact him.

MLA 2005

The next MLA conference will be held in Washington DC, December 27-30, 2005. If you are interested in participating in the ABA session please send an abstract to Janet Smarr by the end of March 2005.
